Easter

Easter is one of the two most important times of the Christian year, the other being Christmas. It marks the day that Jesus, having been killed by crucifixion on Good (think holy, not happy) Friday, came back to life, having "risen from the dead". It is the culmination of a week which has significant meaning. The Sunday preceding it is called Palm Sunday, the day Jesus entered Jerusalem with crowds waving palm branched. Then follows Holy Week. Thursday is when the Last Supper and the betrayal of Jesus by Judas is remembered. Friday is the day that Jesus was crucified, and then Sunday is when the resurrection is marked. Easter is a moveable feast, meaning that it follows a lunar calendar, falling on the first Sunday, after the full moon, which is on or after the vernal equinox. It can therefore be anywhere from late March to late April. Traditions vary according to region and culture, but they typically include an evening vigil, a sunrise service, and often a large family meal. Treats in the shape of rabbits or eggs are often given to children. And new clothes are often worn for the first time on that day.
